	Thile the last of the five formations of aircraft were flying past, a company carrying old Hungarian flags from 1848 and 1919 passed source's position. This company was followed by a company of drumbers and company of cadets. Subsequently, 22 companies of various branches of the service, six of them armed with subrachine guns, and the others with model M h8 rifles, marched past 12 abreast. The marching troops were followed by motorized artillery and mortar units. The equipment observed included 9 guns drawn by weapon carriers, apparently 15-mm caliber AT guns; 9 artillery pieces towed by 3-ton ZIS trucks, probably 85-mm AT guns; 9 single-axle mortars of 160 or 120-mm caliber towed by trucks; h artillery pieces towed by trucks, apparently model 1938 122-mm field howitzers; 9 artillery pieces towed by trucks, probably model 1943 152-mm field howitzers; 4 rocket launchers mounted on ZIS trucks, probably model 13 132-mm rocket launchers; 20 artillery pieces mounted on two-axle undercarriages, apparently 37-mm AA guns; 20 artillery pieces of undetermined type of an estimated caliber of 40 to 50 mm also mounted on two-axle undercarriages; 18 two-axle artillery pieces, probably model 31/37 122-mm field guns towed by two-axle trucks; and 18 artillery pieces of an undetermined type towed by prime movers having treads. They were followed by two tanks, probably of type T 34; 18 PP guns, probably SU-76
